THE PARROT AND THE OTHER BIRDS

by Grigore Alexandrescu

Leaving his cage,
The parrot went to the woods for a walk.
Once he arrived there, he listened to the birds singing
And then he began to talk.
He started with the nightingale
And told her the notes she's singing are too high,
And her voice does not sound well at all.
He criticized all the other birds, large and small,
Until they were all quiet and didn't sing at all.
The birds stopped singing but got really upset,
They went to the parrot and asked him to sing a song:
"Oh, great parrot, please give us an example,
Teach us how we should sing,
Because from the way you speak
You must have the most wonderful voice!"
Hearing this, the parrot answered shyly:
"Oh, my dear birds, I'm only good at judging others,
As for me, I'm no singer at all!"
